Summer School
EUCHIS International School on Chitosan:
One Biopolymer – Plenty of Possibilities

Dates: 26 October – 1 November 2026

Venue: „Petru Poni” Institute of Macromolecular
Chemistry Iasi, Romania

Organization comitee

Dr. Habil. Luminita Marin
Professor David Laurent
Dr. Katja Richter
Professor Anca Hermenean
Geta Ciobanu

Organizers:

The School aims to promote high-quality chemical education by disseminating fundamental, advanced, and applied scientific knowledge essential for the future professional development of students. The curriculum covers recent progress in the chitosan field, ranging from general aspects, such as chitosan production, characterization, and physicochemical properties, to chitosan-based biomaterials, including hydrogels, nanofibers, nanoparticles, and 3D-prints, together with their applications in biomedicine, environmental protection, food packaging, and textile technologies.

The School is open to PhD students and postdoctoral researchers worldwide. It will consist of five days of lectures delivered by leading chitosan experts, hands-on workshops, seminars on key equipment, round-table discussions, a poster session and a team building trip to Northern Moldavia of Romania, meant to strengthen the connections amongst participants and lecturers.
